Erasmus of Rotterdam, a Dutch humanist, was a leading figure in the Northern Renaissance. He was a philosopher, theologian, and statesman. He is best known for his work on the education of the young, which he called the "Cipp Evaluation Model". This model was based on the idea of the "Cipp" (the word for "cup" in Latin) and the "Evaluation Model" (the word for "evaluation" in Latin). Erasmus believed that the Cipp Evaluation Model was the best way to educate the young, and he wrote a book about it called "The Education of a Christian Prince".
